Members of the Board of Directors of the CDC are self-employed, employed by or partners, shareholders or members of local area businesses, community organizations and government agencies.

As a result of their respective employment relationships, one or more of the CDC Board members may have knowledge of matters affecting the credit standing of your business, its officers, directors, shareholders, partners or owners or prospective guarantors ("Business Group"). In order to fulfill their fiduciary duties to the CDC, these Board members must be able to freely share information regarding your Business Group [or any member of your Business Group] whenever such information may be relevant to the consideration of your Application by the CDC.

Further, through their positions as members of the Board of Directors of the CDC, these persons may acquire information regarding your Business Group [or any member of your Business Group] which may later impact dealings with their respective employers. In order to fulfill their obligations as employees of their respective employers these Board members must be able to freely share information regarding your Business Group [or any member of your Business Group] whenever such information may be relevant to business issues of their employers.

The CDC works closely with various local area banks. If your application contemplates a loan with any area bank in conjunction with a loan from the CDC, the CDC and your lender bank must be able to freely share information regarding your Business Group [or any member of your Business Group] whenever such information may be relevant to lending issues of the CDC or your bank.

By executing and delivering this Authorization to the CDC, the Applicant hereby authorizes and agrees to permit the CDC, its Board members, and your lender bank to exchange credit information regarding your Business Group [or any member of your Business Group] at any time during the application process, or, in the event a loan is made to your business, any time thereafter. Applicant acknowledges that this information may include information including, but not limited to, personal consumer credit history and may be privileged or confidential, and further acknowledges that this authorization constitutes a release of the obligation of the party possessing such information to keep it confidential as between and among the CDC, its Board members, their respective employers and your lender bank, and this release shall be effective regardless of whether Applicant receives a loan from the CDC. Applicant further understands that CDC may require correspondence to various sources that have reporting capabilities to verify accuracy of information received.

2. It is the Borrower's responsibility to provide to CDC all information requested by CDC as part of its consideration of the loan application of Borrower. Further, should CDC issue a commitment to make a loan to Borrower, it shall be Borrower's responsibility to provide all documentation requested by CDC for the purpose of consummating such loan to Borrower.

3. Borrower's application accurately describes the project for which Borrower is seeking funding through a loan to be made by CDC. CDC is no way responsible for the design, construction, equipping or operation of the project, or any aspect thereof. The choice of the architects, engineer, builder, lawyer, accountant, bank and any other party providing assistance to Borrower in the implementation of Borrower's project are solely Borrower's choices. Decisions about the appropriateness of purchasing a particular piece of equipment as opposed to another, the decision to purchase new equipment versus used equipment, the decision to construct a building as opposed to the purchase of an existing building, and all such decisions relating to the project for which Borrower seeks funding, are the Borrower's. THE CDC MAKES NO REPRESENTATIONS OR WARRANTIES REGARDING MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR THE PARTICULAR ASSETS PROPOSED TO BE PURCHASED BY BORROWER FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE. The CDC shall rely upon Borrower to have conducted all investigations Borrower believes necessary to satisfy itself as to the appropriateness and functionality of the project assets proposed to be funded in part or in whole through the CDC loan.

4. CDC shall perform such reviews and conduct such investigations as CDC shall determine, in its sole discretion, to satisfy its due diligence requirements for completing a loan to Borrower. CDC shall rely upon the information, representations, and warranties made by Borrower in its application to CDC and in any documentation or other information provided by Borrower pursuant to CDC's consideration of a loan for Borrower. No review, investigation or inquiry made or performed by CDC shall in any way negate CDC's reliance upon the information, representations and warranties made by Borrower to CDC.

5. Borrower acknowledges that it has had an opportunity to read and consider the provisions of this Certificate prior to its execution and delivery to CDC. Borrower acknowledges further that it has had an opportunity to consult with legal counsel regarding the matters contained herein and the implications of the execution and delivery of this certificate. CDC shall be entitled to rely upon this certificate and the certificate shall continue in full force and effect, even after closing on a loan made by CDC. Borrower acknowledges and agrees that, in the event any information provided to CDC shall, after its delivery, be determined to be inaccurate in any material respect, it shall forthwith notify CDC of such inaccuracies and shall undertake to provide accurate information as soon thereafter as is practical.

6. Borrower authorizes CDC to conduct such physical inspections of the assets of Borrower (or any party affiliated with or related to Borrower, including, but not limited to, any corporation or partnership in which Borrower is a majority shareholder or a partner).
